Abstract

English is spoken by many people in the present. It is called the lingua franca of modern times. It is the language most often taught all over the world as a second language. This is also used for interstate and intrastate interactions. With the advancement of technology, research, biology, irrigation, education, mass communication, and computer and operating systems, a new tool for written and oral media has arisen. It is the most commonly spoken language in the world because it is seen as having benefits for communication across cultures. Communication is a skill that requires a systematic approach in order to speak, listen, and understand. Most people begin speaking without difficulty, but it takes time and practice to develop a strong speaking ability. It can be taught some communication skills through formal education. By practicing those skills and getting them evaluated, you will be able to improve them.

1. INTRODUCTION

The way language is used to communicate creates a unified thread for the world. English has a second language status in almost all countries where it is not the first language. The most important thing when learning a new language is to learn a language that is easy to use in everyday conversations. The workforce of today is supposed to be able to improve their skills and learn new things throughout their lives. Language is a skill that can be mastered like any other art, but it becomes increasingly difficult to do so as age. Communication has an impact on the community as a whole because it affects how people behave. Effective communication is a key component of successful social development. The necessity to learn a language emerges from the potential benefits that it can provide. Communication is the process of sharing thoughts, ideas, and opinions with others. The two-way communication mechanisms are helpful for making contact and understanding one another, and can help to stabilize good relationships [1].

Communication is successful when the communicator is able to maintain integrity, clarity, frankness, and dynamism in their interactions. Moreover, it is essential for building strong relationships of empathy in a society and for the sharing of human beings, resources, and ideas between different positions. This process involves receiving and using feedback to improve our skills. Therefore, it is interactive by nature because it involves two or more people exchanging thoughts or ideas. Today, English is no longer just a necessary tool for people who want to communicate in the world; it is also important for those who need to understand science and technology. English is now a global language, and it is the most suitable for communication across cultures [2].

2. RELATED WORK

In [3] Change is something that happens naturally, and its something that should expect and embrace. Heraclitus says that nothing is eternal, but everything is in a constant process of change. A recurring pattern can be seen as a general trend. Prior to the current generation of students, there were a variety of different educational options available, but the recent trends in the field of education have completely changed the way traditional education works. Recent trends in education have shown that it is important to internalize the learning system, to focus on quality over quantity, to adopt new technology, and to recruit skilled workers. In the field of ELT, the theories and methods are constantly evolving, as new information is gathered and new approaches are developed. There are a number of popular trends that have been used throughout the world in recent times, and one of these is the increasing popularity of fashion. Another trend that is becoming increasingly popular is the use of technology in various aspects of life.

In [4] the education system is becoming too easy for students to join, which is leading to more students not being able to access it. There have been a number of announcements made recently, such as the elimination of compulsory CBSE board exams for Class 10 from the 2010-11 session, the implementation of a grading system, the passage of children's right to free and compulsory education bill, and reservation policies. Now, there is a question as to how successful various education initiatives have been in different country states.

In [5] Communication refers to the exchange of information between people in order to share ideas and thoughts. In the 21st century, it is important to be able to effectively communicate with others. Interaction is an important part of science and technology studies, and students should not ignore the fundamentals of it. Due to the growing trend of globalization, engineering and technology students need to have a good grasp of language skills in order to be successful. To rise up the corporate ladder, one must have good communication skills. The English language instructor has a responsibility to help students improve their communication skills. English language teachers have a responsibility to help students develop the necessary communication skills when working together in engineering and technology classes.

In [6] English has become an important part of modern life, and people use it in all aspects of their lives. Therefore, newspapers are important. The journal offers advice on how to read newspapers in a way that will help improve your English skills. There are some tasks and exercises that can be implemented in the classroom to help improve your English skills. These exercises not only help the students learn, but they will also help them to improve their weaknesses in a humanistic way.

3. GROWING ENGLISH IN AN INTERCONNECTED WORLD

English is the language that unites people from all over the world, allows businesses to prosper, drives scientific discoveries, and provides people with opportunities they never would have had otherwise. The invention of the internet has allowed people to communicate more effectively than ever before. This has helped them to connect with each other and share information more easily. The global reach of English has a significant impact on our lives. The euro helped shape the global economy, giving it a new face and making borders irrelevant. English has been responsible for the shape of our modern reality through its influence in the fields of culture, science, and education. The impact of globalization is likely to be permanent and to grow as humanity gets further involved in it. To be aware of this international language is important in order to gain this knowledge. We presume that our language has the ability to express the multiplicity of ideas and complexity of thoughts that are demanded in our modern civilization [7]. In today's technologically-rich world, it's essential to be fluent in electronic media, as it's the means of communication and a person who doesn't know it can't access the world's collective knowledge. Since the universal analysis in this language is well-known, its quality cannot be lowered. The current era is one of great scientific and technological progress, which is best illustrated in English. Consequently, people need to learn English in order to be able to fully participate in this era. English has been a strong proponent of third world countries, helping them develop and prosper. It is seen as a way to gain greater awareness. Now is the time of scientific progress and technological innovation, and in order to be able to understand it, people need to learn English.

4. CONCLUSIONS

When it comes to education and research, the most experienced experts are often from other countries. People who want to use information technology to improve their lives should have the best English skills. For those who know English, employment is almost always in big business. There is a need for translators who specialize in a certain area. There are many companies are willing to spend their own money on training new employees. To be successful as a secretary in a large company, it is important to have good English skills. This is often necessary because secretaries often have to contact international partners.
